

POLITICAL PARADE

By CLEM WHITAKER

Greatness, in politics is an ephemeral thing, largely because the "greats" of the headlines are usually bogus. They have feet of clay—and sooner or later they stumble over them. But once in a while, in politics, as in every walk of life, there's a man with innate greatness, a man unashamed to be good and fine, and tolerant and understanding, in all the hurly-burly of a hard-boiled world.

Ray Davidson, the Los Angeles boy who got into politics and found he loved it, was such a man. He never courted headlines, but he was known to every man of consequence in California politics—respected by them all, loved by many, feared by others. For Ray was a man of this world, with a genius for winning political battles, but a man who played the game straight, with an idealism which marked him as "different" in the realm of politics.

Ray Davidson died last week—a strange thing to say, for Ray had a tremendous, urgent, youthful vitality, and a way of life that can't possibly die, because it is the sum and substance of America. Always building some other man to greatness, or fighting to save some other man's issue, he was almost wholly unknown to rank and file voters—but he talked to them, before every election, persuasively and effectively, and usually they voted Ray's way. His unquenchable enthusiasm made statutes and moved innumerable political mountains; it was almost unbeatable. For Ray just never quit fighting for the things he believed in.

Only once before, in all the years this column has been published, have we put our political script aside to write a few words of tribute for a man of politics who has gone. The other time was when Senator John McColl of Redding—Johnnie to his host of friends—died following an automobile accident. Strangely enough, Ray Davidson and Johnnie McColl were closely associated in the now famous fight for the Central Valley Water Project, which was launched in the 1933 election. Ray managed the campaign in southern California; Johnnie was one of its staunchest champions in northern California.

There is one other thing about Ray Davidson we feel compelled to mention. Ray was the best answer we have yet found to all Hitler's rantings against the Jews. Ray Davidson was Jewish and proud of it, but Ray, too, breathed tolerance and kindness and a generous spirit into the mundane world of politics. He loved flowers; he loved music; he loved the lovely little Irish girl he married, and he loved all mankind. He loved politics and he loved America—and for that reason, Ray Davidson needs no monuments. He left them on California's statute books.

Rhyme and Some Reason for Seeing Local Players

Inspired by The Footlights' play to be presented this Friday evening at the high school auditorium, Ethan Lanphear concocted the following jingle. See the show, help the community chest, and see how it all turns out.

"IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE"

Our gang is preparing a play
On 'How advertising will pay.'
It's a real zippy thing,
With a comical swing:
As good as we've had in our day.

The play director is Paul.
Now, he's not a fellow to stall,
So, to advertise soap,
He mixes his dope
And will sell you nothing at all.

The old man's a fat guy named Jack,
Who thinks his young son is a lack;

But Paul joins the son
And says, "Bob, just for fun,
We'll give the old boy a nice whack."

The son is a fellow called Bob,
Who some folks consider a snob;

But he falls right in line
And hangs out his sign,
"13 Soap" is his regular job.

The steno, a gal they call Helen,
With love for the son is a'swellin'.

She uses her bean
When she comes on the scene,
To help "13 Soap" in the sellin'.

A French countess—we call her Lenore,
Saw the soap advertised in a store.

Said she, "It's my lot
To crack the Jack-pot
Of its money, and maybe some more."

A blighty young Limey named
Gene,
With Ivory soap keeps himself
clean;

For his father makes it
And never mistakes it
For new "13 Soap," what I mean.

Now this play I haven't seen end,

But I think that the trouble will mend.

They'll stop all the swirl,
Bob will marry the girl,
And help father's millions to spend.

Frosh-Soph Team Tangles With Santa Clara Today

Campbell's freshman-sophomore football team plays its first game of the season at 3:30 today with Santa Clara on the latter's turf.

Twenty-five players are making the trip and Coach Hudson stated that all of them would participate at some time during the game.

All of the boys are inexperienced, but they showed great possibilities when they held San Jose to a 0 to 0 tie in a scrimmage about two weeks ago.

"Sim Sala Bim" At San Francisco's Curran Theater

Mo-Yo Miller, Australian-born exotic beauty and chief illusionist with Dante, the famous Magician, who will bring his mystic stage production to the Curran Theater, San Francisco for a limited engagement commencing Monday night, October 20.

The sensational amusement treat of the entire season comes to the Curran Theater, San Francisco, for a limited engagement commencing on Monday night, Oct. 20, when the master of magic, Dante, with his original New York company of 35 mystifiers, presided over by Miss Mo-Yo Miller, the greatest female illusionist in the world and one of the most beautiful women before the public—will present his fantastic mystery revue in 28 scenes entitled "Sim Sala Bim." Owing to public demand, Dante will give two extra shows on Sunday, Oct. 26, at 2:30 p. m. and at 8:30 p. m.

This startling two and a half hour's entertainment of mirth, melody, magic and mystery, embroidered with a wealth of gorgeous costumes, elaborate scenery and bewildering accessories, has been acclaimed all over the world as the most colorful, expert and entertaining revue ever witnessed in the annals of amusement.

Dante, who was associated for several years with the beloved Howard Thurston, carries upon his manly shoulders the mantle of mystery and illusion so gracefully worn by the expert Thurston.

Dante has just returned to this country after 14 years touring in every section of the world, where the white man lives, and inaugurated a transcontinental tour in New York City at the Morosco theater, where for ten weeks he played to absolute capacity—at every performance. This approbation has been duplicated in all the largest cities of the country.

Among the 50 spectacular illusions presented by the gifted Dante in addition to his marvelous exhibition of card-billiard ball-flower and animal manipulating and disappearing, conspicuously prominent are his "Mystery of the Stratosphere," "The Human Target," "Crushing A Woman In Two," "The Enchanted Cottage," "The Magic Bartender," and "Fun In A Barber shop." All these illusions are synchronized with music, so

Dial Phones Will Create Fire Alarm Problem, Said

Campbell chamber of commerce at its Monday meeting considered the problem which will develop about fire alarms when the dial phones go into use which will be sometime after the new year.

As there is no paid fireman or attendant at the fire house unless some plan is devised a person ringing the fire department must remain on the line until some member arrives at the fire house or the call is useless. Sunnyvale has been struggling with the same situation.

The committee that has been working on renumbering of houses and other property reported their work about three-quarters done.

Selected as a nominating committee were Lowell Benson, Ira Grim and Dan Clark. They will report at the November meeting when the officers will be elected and take over their duties in December.

C. of C. Effort Is Appreciated

The appended letter was written to Dr. W. R. Morgan as president of the chamber of commerce, relative to the book which the Roosevelt Junior High school exhibited at the county fair, in which a page was devoted to Campbell. R. H. Knappen provided the pictures of Campbell showing days of old and now, with brief notations.

My dear Dr. Morgan:
We are indebted to you for the material which you suggested that Mr. Knappen send to us about your city. The section about Campbell was more worthwhile than others because the typed material which accompanied the photographs made it so.

On behalf of the class and of all those who enjoyed looking at the book, I want to thank you.

Sincerely, yours,
Alma V. Linton.

THE CALL OF THE OPEN ROAD

The call of the open road is in the crisp air of sunny autumn for seven million Californians. People of this state of mild winters and wondrous scenery and vast distances own more than 2,500,000 pleasure cars—so many that the entire population, men, women and children, could take a Sunday afternoon ride with only three persons to each car!

It is little wonder that California's highway system is the finest in all America—and the most expensive; for it serves our immense tourist industry as well as our own outdoor pleasure. And it is little wonder that California motorists are becoming duly worried over a proposal of the Interstate Commerce commission to place commercial use and needs of trucking fleets above those of the motoring millions whose taxes have built and maintained the highways. The ICC proposes that congress grant the commissioners power to dictate to each state the weight and size of trucks in interstate commerce—power that now rightly belongs to the highway authorities of the states in which the trucks operate.

California has always been a most liberal state with regard to opening its highways to enormous truck weights—to loads hard upon surfaces and costly in maintenance. And California motorists have shown patience with the growing interference of commercial fleets with the motoring enjoyment for which the highways were built. But it is going too far to ask Californians, of all people, to surrender the right to determine as they see best the weights and sizes of truck carriers enjoying the privilege of California highways and streets. The call of the open road—California pleasure on California highways built with California money—must never be stifled by the commercial dictates of some bureaucratic office back in winter-cold, summer-hot Washington, D. C.

WHY NOT WRITE?

We're not going to suggest that you write a letter or a card.

No, it isn't national letter-writing week. Our aim is just to remind you that some draftee that you know would be mightily cheered to hear from you—not necessarily a lengthy epistle, but just a few words letting him know you haven't forgotten him.

Naturally, this doesn't apply to parents and relatives who, we're sure, have been writing all along. We're aiming this suggestion at friends and acquaintances of the young men who have been called for training in the army. The home ties, and this includes the home-town ties, are the ones most sorely missed by the selectee. You can help fill that need by a personal letter or card. That, in itself, will show that you appreciate the sacrifice he's making on your behalf in order that you and all the nation's citizens may enjoy security and that this nation's might will earn it the wholesome respect of all other powers.

PAPER TAKES THE COUNT

The nation's normal consumption of this ever-present, indispensable item is 26 million tons a year. Production to date has been at the rate of only 21 million tons for this year. That five million ton cut has already moved California's retailers to heed the government's warning of an immediately approaching shortage. Retail merchants, united in their desire to cooperate with the defense program in every way they can, have pledged themselves to reduce, as extensively as possible, their use of paper.

Shoppers, too, can meet the situation in the same practical way and restrict, as far as possible, their demands for paper wrappings, paper bags, and non-essential paper.

THE GUN BEHIND THE DOOR

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor gave good but belated advice to all organized labor when he said before delegates of the AFL national convention in Seattle that labor should voluntarily forego the strike as a weapon for the duration of the national emergency. Terming the right to strike "labor's biggest gun" and declaring "we will not surrender it to anyone," Green added that "we are willing to leave it behind the door temporarily." It is possible that advice was motivated by current evidences of public opinion.

To expedite defense, industry generally has long since voluntarily surrendered rights fully as fundamental and vital to industrial survival as the strike is vital to Labor—such as the right of free enterprise in respecting priorities, such as property rights in yielding control of physical plants and materials to defense authorities. But with industry thus voluntarily disarmed, some labor leaders have redoubled the use of strikes to force union organization, to wage labor's civil wars, to force the public into submission.

It is reasonable to assume that the reactions of the public against such manifestations are bringing intelligent labor leaders to realize that unless labor does voluntarily place that "big gun" behind the door, a bigger gun of resistless power may be hauled "from behind the door" in indignant retaliation—the Big Bertha of public opinion.

MASTER OF DREAMS

One recent night a California opera company entertained an audience in Portland with Wagner's "Tannhauser." The same night, a special performance of "Tannhauser" was given with much fanfare in Berlin, the Nazi critics interpreting the masterpiece as "symbolic of Germany's present struggle."

The same music—but what a difference of interpretation! In Portland, an Oregon audience with artists from California were drawn together by nothing symbolic racially or politically—only by mutual love for the beauty in music. No one cared that the title role was sung by Lauritz Melchior, a Dane, and other stars were Stella Roman, a Rumanian, Karin Branzell, a Swede, Lorenzo Alvary, a Hungarian, Julius Huehn, an American, with Erich Leinsdorf, a German, conducting. That is in the cultural tradition of Cosmopolitan, tolerant America, in her swift young life welcoming everything in music from the scrape of the frontier dance-hall fiddles through the soft stringed serenades of the Spanish dons to the operas and philharmonic concerts of today.

Wagner died in 1883; and when the news reached King Ludwig of Bavaria, the king rode alone at dead of a winter night to pay his last tribute to the man he called the master of his world of dreams. That interpretation of Wagner is the interpretation this country's music lovers understand.

PURSE-SNATCHER'S PROSPERITY

Sales zoom, wages skyrocket, employment soars, business steps up generally, economists report.

Also, reports the state bureau of criminal investigation, the sorry trade of the criminal likewise has increased throughout California in the past year. Crimes for the first eight months of 1941, totalling 27,900, are nearly a thousand over the record for the corresponding period of 1940.

It is a pathetic increase. The crime rise is centered in fictitious checks, forgeries, purse-snatching and robbery. There are more purses with money in them than a year ago, of course—and more money in more checking accounts, and more money in tills and safes. And so temptation has grown for moral weaklings and intellectual cripples.

But the scanty loot that the stickup man or purse-snatcher may get before the law closes in on him is indeed a pitiful "prosperity," in this year when there is such abundant legitimate opportunity for brawn and brain and ambition in humming California.

I'M FOREVER BLOWING BUBBLES!

THE BOOK MARK

By JANE

Big Family by Bellamy Partridge.

Bellamy Partridge isn't the only one who can boast of a Big Family. The Book Mark has a sister who liked Bellamy's book about the doings and goings of the various members of his Big Family so much that she wants to tell you a little about it.

Eight children can have a lot of fun growing up. At least this family did and it is worlds of fun reading about them. The boys seemed to have the most of the good times and so got into most of the scrapes. One place I marked tells about an especially good afternoon of fun in the barn on a rainy afternoon. "Coalheavers" was the game and the black eyes and barked shins were plentiful by supper time.

Speaking of supper reminds me of the meals in this family. There was something! You can't help but marvel at the way these meals were gotten up and how there was always plenty for everybody no matter how many extras just dropped in. That mother was some manager. "Gra Richardson" lived with them too and on certain occasions, such as birthdays, she could be induced to make an Indian pudding. It must have been quite a pudding. The recipe is in the book if you want to try it.

Here in this book you will learn the literal meaning of being "Called On the Carpet." It was a very effective method of keeping this bunch of children in line. Father was very fussy about well polished shoe heels and Bellamy was forever having to go back and do his over. Father was more than fussy about punctuality. With watch in hand he waited for the correct minute to leave for church on Sunday, and when that minute arrived he snapped the watch case shut and off they went. Church was very serious business in this family and an every Sunday affair. One of the funniest incidents in the book took place when Bellamy was forced to wear the new derby hat to church. It was more than his friends could let pass without a few remarks, which Bellamy couldn't let pass without a few punches in noses and so ended the derby hat. Such conduct in church on Easter Sunday was most humiliating and distressing for mother, but she was more than equal to all occasions and this was just another incident to be taken care of and soon forgotten. All mothers are wonderful that way.

Orchard City Grange

The meeting of Pomona Grange was held Tuesday evening at Campbell. It was opened with a pot luck dinner in the banquet room of I. O. O. F. hall.

The lecture program, under J. C. Gordon, consisted of "hill billy" music by Mr. Richmond and Mr. Thompson of the Gilroy Grange. Mr. Gordon gave an interesting talk on the various lucrative fakes that are operating, such as correspondence school rackets, chemical remedies, magazine solicitors, etc. Of course not all are fakes. Mr. Lambert Skillman gave an enlightening talk on life in the county prison camp at Madrone Springs.

The ceremony of draping the charter was performed in memory of the death of Joseph Vierra of Morgan Hill.

The dignitaries present at the meeting were State Grange Master George Sehl-meyer, State Deputy of Stanislaus county, Coster, State Deputy of Santa Clara county, Ernest Coonradt, Harry Barnes, State Executive committeeman and Mrs. Cordelia Hannah, State Superintendent of puvénile granmes.

Appreciations were expressed to all who helped with the Pomona exhibit at the county fair.

State Grange Master Sehl-meyer gave the major address of the evening. He said that California ranks second in granges organized. He also stated that this is the diamond jubilee of the National Grange. He also discussed the "hot cargo" issue and gave the principle aims in labor relations with the farmers.

Lehmann and Melchior to Open S. J. Concert Series

Great interest is being created in the Sixth Annual San Jose Concert series by the slated appearance of two internationally known opera singers, Lotte Lehman, soprano and Lauritz Melchior, Danish tenor. These two members of the Metropolitan Opera company will open the series with a joint recital at the civic auditorium on Tuesday, Nov. 4, under Denny-Watrous management.

In 1938, before crowded New York Carnegie hall, Lotte Lehmann, greatest singing actress of our day, and Lauritz Melchior, greatest of heroic tenors, appeared for the first time in joint recital.

The affair was in the manner of an experiment. The artists, close friends in private life and associated for many years on the opera stage, had long wished to appear together on the concert stage as well.

A stirring and triumphant finale to what one critic called "a program beautifully conceived, as it was beautifully fashioned in its delivery." — (N. Y. Sun)

The program was repeated once more that season in Newark, N. J. to an audience of over 3,000—a second and convincing proof of its sensational appeal.

Following this the two world-famous artists made their first joint recital tour, giving 18 concerts in the United States and Canada. They have been widely acclaimed and this year will make an extensive tour together, which will take them from Vancouver to New Orleans.

Other attractions on the concert series are the Don Cos-sacks, Russian male chorus, Thursday, Jan. 15; Jose Iturbi, pianist, Friday, Feb. 20; Littlefield Ballet, Monday, March 9; Dorothy Maynor, celebrated Negro soprano, Friday, March 27. Tickets are on sale at the auditorium box office. The telephone is Columbia 7087.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Leary were recent visitors in Newman where they were house guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Steffensen.

Kiwanis Club Hears "History of Campbell"

Mrs. Charlotte Sutter was quest speaker at Tuesday's luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club when she read her "History of Campbell and Vicinity." Mrs. Edna Smith as guest chairman, presented the speaker.

At next weeks meeting a pre-convention rally will be held under the direction of Henry H. Buell of the San Jose club. The convention will be held in San Jose Oct. 23, 24 and 25. About sixteen from the Campbell club have signed up to go so far.

Fellowship Supper At Church Thurs.

A fellowship supper was participated in by members of the Congregational church Thursday evening with group 2 of the guild as hostess.

Rev. and Mrs. Donald H. Baldwin were honor guests for the occasion and were welcomed by Rev. J. H. Bennett. Rev. Baldwin expressed their appreciation of the hearty reception they had received in Campbell and a hope for a continuance of co-operative relations between the churches.

Mrs. Dorothy Rich sang very sweetly "The Bubble," "L'Amour, Toujours, L'Amour," and as a request encore "In the Garden of Tomorrow."

Dennis Bennett entertained with "My Dear Soul" and "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes." Mrs. Irma Sanders was accompanist for both singers.

Stanley B. Smith read the proposed budget for 1942 which had been compiled by the officers and which was adopted.

Campbell Fidelis Theta Rho club on Oct. 10 chartered a greyhound bus and went to Berkeley to install the Theta Rho club No. 2.

They left Campbell at 6:15 with the installing staff, the drill team, and other members of the club and Rebekah sisters.

The installing staff wore white formals and carried large horseshoes decorated with pink and blue flowers. The blue flowers would light up with blue lights.

The drill team also wore white formals and carried blue parasols. The little mascot, Louan Brady, carried the American flag.

Refreshments and dancing followed in the large banquet hall.

Mrs. R. B. Hummell who suffered fractured knee caps in an auto accident six months ago is able to walk about now, although slowly and with no setbacks anticipates getting out again in a few more weeks.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

According to popular conception, most farmers are dyed in the wool pessimists who look upon each sunny day as a sure omen of stormy weather to come. But popular conceptions are often erroneous.

Actually, farmers are incurable optimists. They couldn't possibly stay in the farming game, year after year, otherwise. And the slightest upturn in general economic conditions is always quickly reflected in farming operations.

Currently, a general improvement in the demand for farm real estate is evident from reports on land sales by the federal land banks and the Federal Farm Mortgage corporation. Inasmuch as these institutions hold approximately 40 per cent of the total farm mortgage debt of the United States, any trends in their collections, foreclosures, or land sales are significant. During the first half of 1941, these banks and the corporation sold 23 per cent of all properties available for sale, as against 20 per cent in the corresponding period for last year.

Of particular interest is the substantial improvement in the demand for farm lands in areas long subject to distressed agricultural conditions: in North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and other states on the Great Plains. The proportion of available farms sold in South Dakota and Nebraska during the first half of 1941 is nearly double the corresponding proportion sold during the first half of 1940.

Significant, too, is the fact that the great proportion of farms are being sold to farmers living in the same communities in which the farms are located; consequently, the buyers, as a rule, are thoroughly familiar with local factors having a bearing on the value of the properties. Farm tenants, particularly, have constituted a strong element in the current demand for farm land. About 50 per cent of the farms have been sold to farm tenants.

The bureau of agricultural economics reports that a healthy condition in the current situation is the fact that the increased activity does not reflect a price boom such as occurred during World war No. 1. Instead, it is a recovery in the active demand for farm land that has returned after a decade characterized by a slow market for farm real estate. Most observers report that except in isolated instances the prices at which farm lands are being sold have not materially advanced. The federal land banks and the Farm Mortgage corporation have not followed a practice of raising prices on farms for sale but have continued to sell them at prices based on the long-term outlook for agriculture and at prices reflecting their true value in the market.

Other indications of improved conditions in farm real estate, according to the fed-

C. U. High to Host Nat'l Musicians

All the world loves a winner, especially when those winners are high school musicians who have won top honors in their competitive fields.

The national assemblies programs is bringing here a group of musicians who have won such honors, Friday Oct. 17.

The program is directed by Mrs. Alta Wells, who has been a member of outstanding entertainment groups, known from coast to coast and in England and Australia.

One of the outstanding members of this ensemble is Hugo Kastning, who has won honors with the marimba, vibraphone, accordion and drums. He will demonstrate with all four of these instruments. Hugo does all of his own arranging, and has composed several pieces. He also plays the piano creditably.

The program presented by these young musicians will be of light and popular music.

St. Lucy's club card party will be held at St. Martin's parish hall, Burbank, Nov. 18 at 8 o'clock.

eral bureau, are the downward trends in real estate requirements and foreclosures. Records of the FCA covering the past year show fewer foreclosures of mortgages, increased volume of payments of principal and interest on mortgage debts held by the government, and generally increased sales of farm real estate. Other creditors in the farm mortgage field have experienced greatly improved conditions. One large life insurance company, for example, indicated in its annual report that despite intensive efforts to increase its investment in farm mortgage loans, no increase was attained, largely because payments received from farm-borrowers on outstanding loans more than offset the amounts of new loans made.

With business and labor conditions in the cities improved by national defense spending, and with the demand for farm commodities greatly increased, farmers are undeniably optimistic. All the records indicate it. But the fact that farm land prices are not skyrocketing indicates that the World war boom of more than two decades ago, and its aftermath, are still remembered—and may not be repeated. It proved far too costly and it is to be hoped that agriculture, during this period, will not repeat the mistakes of 1917, '18 and '19 and the early 20's.

Seniors Rehearse Annual Play

Thirteen members of the senior class of Campbell High school are swinging into a stiff series of rehearsals for the annual senior play "Tish" a story of three old maids created by Mary Roberts Rinehart.

Mabel Pickett will seize the spotlight in the title role, ably supported by Rae Ekstrand and Gloria Perine as the two old maid accomplices of the inimitable "Tish." Tom Jenkins and Charlotte Robertson will handle the straight lead parts.

Other members of the cast include Jack Smith as Luther Hopkins, the village banker; Caroline Burgess as his daughter; Winona Beach as Charita, a Mexican maid; Jacqueline Du Pont as Bettina Trent, a mystery woman; Frank Savstrom, as Sheriff Lem Pike; Ellis Crane as Denby Grimes, a movie producer; Phil Griffin as Wesley Andrew; and Ida Hasselman as movie actress Dorice Gaylord.

The play is a hilarious character comedy woven around the escapades of three old maids who start out in an ancient "model T" in search of adventure. They find it!

Stanford Playday Set for Oct. 18th.

The girls hockey teams of the high school are looking forward to an eventful playday at Stanford on Saturday, Oct. 18, from 9 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. After the competitive games between the schools, the Northern California Hockey association will give a demonstration game.

Mrs. D. H. Cramer, as associate matron of the Los Gatos chapter of Eastern Star will leave next Sunday morning for Long Beach where the grand chapter of the order of California will meet from October 20 to 26. Upon the conclusion of the session, she will visit for a week in Los Angeles with Mrs. Grant Dowell.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Shank are enjoying a lengthy fishing trip in Oregon.

Campbell Hoop Teams Draw Bye

Although the Campbell 110 and 20 basketball teams drew a pass this week, they are working hard toward a meeting with the Los Gatos Cats in a night game, Oct. 24.

The loss of one of the best 110 forwards, Bob Amaro, who has moved to Los Angeles, has been a blow to the team, but Coach Ralph Noddin claims the team is still good enough to meet the Los Gatos Cats.

The defense of the 120's is outstanding, but as every great team has its weak point so do the 1941 Buccaneers—offense.

After an illness Del Grande first string center, has recovered and will probably start the game for Campbell.

Mrs. Sue Boyce of North Harrison avenue and her sister, Mrs. Ella Dawson of Los Angeles started this morning for an auto trip, route uncharted, but which will take them to the Sierras, through Northern California and as far as Roseburg, Ore. The chief object of the trip is to enjoy the beautiful autumn foliage now in full splendor. Weather and inclination will determine the length of the vacation.

Byron Lanphear who has been here on furlough, is starting Saturday evening for Victorville where he is due to report for duty on Oct. 22. He may be accompanied as far as Los Angeles by his father, Ethan E. Lanphear.

Buccaneers Meet Mt. View Here Friday Afternoon

The Buccaneers meet the Mt. View Eagles Friday, Oct. 17, on their home field at 3 p. m.

The Mt. View eleven were champions last year and although they lost three or four seniors by graduation, they are favored to retain the title throughout the 1941 season.

Campbell's record to date has been one tie and one loss.

This game should be very close, with one touchdown either way deciding the outcome.

Results of Chest Drive Encouraging

Community chest workers are still busy soliciting their territory. Reports turned in up to Wednesday at 7 p. m. totaled $915.90, slightly ahead of 1940.

This is a long way from the $1600 goal set in the budget but Manager Jack Murdock is optimistic that the total amount will be pledged as a number of solicitors have not yet reported.

One encouraging feature is that several who have not contributed before have subscribed this year, and every bit helps.
